The Norwegian Confederation of Trade Unions (LO) has threatened to set up a factory occupation of the management of Norsk Høstproduksjon, which in turn was recently bought by the Norwegian wind turbine giant Øyvind Hammerum. 2. November 2015 "We'll become involved if the company is forced to lay off workers during the holiday period. Employees have repeatedly asked for discussions. We'll also ask that workers' representatives are involved in the decision-making," said Kjell Lunde, secretary general of the LO, as quoted by Stavanger Aftenblad. Høstproduksjon has over 2,000 employees. The company is based in Kvinnherad, western Norway. The company has just been bought by Øyvind Hammerum, one of the largest manufacturers of wind turbines in the world and was previously part of Cinergy. The Norwegian wind turbine giant, now owned by the Japanese conglomerate Mitsubishi, is operating the factory in a rented office space. Meanwhile, the Norwegian Wind Owners Association are reportedly pleading for a limit on the number of redundancies. "The uncoupling of the wind turbine industry from electricity production in favour of other means is essential to limit the number of redundancies," said the association's board member Lars Erik Knudsen. After the fall of the global wind turbine industry into crisis,
