83 Calculation of the mean and standard deviation of the coefficients of determination R2 for independent variables is based on the least significant term in each summary A: In your case, you might be better off using some numerical integral package, like NIntegrate, NMaximize or Optimize. NIntegrate gives you all sorts of information related to what the value of the function is at different points. For example, NIntegrate[x^2 + y^2, {x, -10, 10}, {y, -10, 10}] gives the integral of the area of a square between points (x,y) and (-10, 10) at different points, with the size of the square corresponding to the integration limits (or the sizes you want). It also gives you the error (if anything); here, we don't want that: IntegralValue[x^2 + y^2, {x, -10, 10}, {y, -10, 10}, MaxExtraConditions -> All] does the same thing, but does it by calculating everything at once, and then displaying the result of the calculation. optimize[sol_, a_, b_] := Module[{vars, sol, res}, res = N[Evaluate[sol /. x -> a, y -> b]] ; vars = {a, b}; vars /. First[vars /. FindMinimum[res, vars]]] Given values a and b, it finds the best solution (the one that minimizes the integral). sol = optimize[x^2 + y^2, -10, 10] Out[176]= {2.85399, { -0.68963, -0.68963}} This means that the maximum value of the integral will be 2.85399 when -10 and 10 are swapped. For the sake of a simple example, suppose I want to find the maximum value of the integral of $f(x,y)$ between -5 and 5 in the rectangle $[-10,10] \times [-5,5]$. (This example is not necessarily useful in your case, but I thought it was clear.) My function is a mess, but I'll still use

The surgical technique of resection of the pectus excavatum bone using the endoscopic technique is described. The anatomy and surgical technique of this surgery are discussed and the result in 27 patients is presented. Among them 23 patients with simple pectus excavatum and 4 patients with other kinds of pectus deformity are treated. Following resection of the pectus and fixation of the prosthetic material, the patients were observed for a period ranging from 1 to 4.8 years. The endoscopic procedure in this series can be regarded as a safe and advantageous method in the treatment of pectus excavatum.8 cups of water 2 tablespoons of fresh orange juice 2 tablespoons of fresh lemon juice 1 teaspoon of cinnamon 1 tablespoon of sugar ½ cup of Medjool dates, pitted Instructions Blend ingredients in a blender until smooth.
