Configurarcorreodecantvenoutlook ~REPACK~

A: The problem is that you are splitting the file at the start of a line: `def count_word(stream, word): """Count the number of times the string, ``word``, appears in the stream.""" if stream: return Counter(word).most_common(1) else: return 0` You are then using it like so: `for line in stream: with open('{} .txt'.format(line.strip(' '))) as file: if count_word(file, 'Test word') > count_word(file, 'test '): file.close()` That is looking for lines with "Test" and "test" in them, then looking at the data after the lines. But you are not looking at the lines. You are removing the lines from the file. My suggestion is to not use "stream" to mean the whole file, but read the lines, do the processing, and then write the lines to the file again.
