The hard drive is located in my external harddrive and i am able to see all files in there. i have a problem that i am able to see all files in there. But when i click on a folder like xxx.py it is showing an error I am able to open files from that drive. It is an ntfs hard drive. A: I have an external hard drive that I'm mounting to my Linux desktop. I noticed that when you try to open some of the files on it, you get an error about being unable to open with GEDIT. Running gedit, or your preferred editor, works fine. I found this by running gedit *, and gedit *. To fix that problem, I added my mount point (/media/MyDrive) to my system's list of "open as" options when mounting. Once that was done, I am no longer receiving the error message, and can open my files with my editor of choice. GC-based biolab-on-chip system for effective analysis of C. diff 6d1f23a050
